

Peter G. Allor
Executive Security Strategist, Disclosure Project Manager
IBM Security
6303 Barfield Road
Atlanta, GA 30328
Phone: 404-643-9638

Peter Allor is the Executive Cyber Security Strategist for IBM Security. He is instrumental in IBM's strategy and development of products and services for securing Critical Infrastructure Organizations and Government Operations. He focuses on developing solutions that integrate the full spectrum of security operations supporting the business and addressing risk.

Peter project manages disclosure of vulnerabilities and external malware coordination for IBM and the IBM Security X-Force Researchers.

Peter is the Vice-Chair on the Executive Committee Member of the Information Technology - Sector Coordinating Council (IT-SCC). Peter is one of the initial members to the Board of Advisors for the Global Forum on Cyber Expertise (GFCE), focusing on expanding Cyber Capacity Building on a global scale.

Peter is the President and a Member of the Board of Director representing IBM to the Industry Consortium for Advancement of Security on the Internet (ICASI). A former Commissioner for the CSIS Cybersecurity Commission for the 44th Presidency he assisted in developing recommendations for the Public and Private Sectors to work collaboratively on Cyber Security. He is a member of the Steering Committee for Diabetes Technology Society working on Protection Profiles for Medical Devices (Blood Glucose Monitors and Insulin Pumps) for the past year. Peter was recently a Member, Board of Director of the Forum of Incident Response and Security Teams (FIRST) and is the Education Advisory Board Chair for developing Services Frameworks for Computer and Product Incident Response Teams (CSIRT and PSIRT).

Prior to IBM acquiring Internet Security Systems (ISS), Peter was the Special Assistant to the CEO of ISS working National Infrastructure Advisory Council (NIAC) problem sets. As the former Operations Center Director, he ran the Information Technology - Information Sharing & Analysis Center (IT-ISAC) operations and brought coordination across the sector ISACs. Peter is on the Editorial Board for "Cyber Security: A Peer-Reviewed Journal".

Peter is a retired Lieutenant Colonel from the US Army where he served in Special Forces. He has Masters Degree from the University of Phoenix, a BS in Business Administration from Rollins College and is a Graduate of the US Army Command & General Staff College.

Allor is a "Certified SCADA Security Architect" working with customers and National governments on better securing industry sectors / critical infrastructures. He has presented on penetration testing of Industrial Control Systems to FIRST; the World Institute for Nuclear Security; and the International Atomic Energy Agency.

Allor has spoken at numerous events on security, information sharing and cyber intelligence, including IEEE, RSA, QuBits, ISACA, IAEA for Nuclear Power Plant Security, Homeland Security for Networked Industries, GFIRST National Conferences, FIRST International Conferences, Infragard National Conferences, Forbes Corporate Security Forums, iSecuTech Taiwan, and for the Secret Service San Francisco and Chicago and the FBI Regional Forums. In 2005, Allor was presented with IT Security Magazine's* Individual Innovation Award. He has participated in the US Army Senior Leader Program at West Point, NY on Cyber Security, an invitational event, and other major Defense Department Regional Forums.

###